

Seahorse Press Release July 13th 2011

Managing Director Delivers Keynote Lecture to UK Department of Health

Dr. Art Tucker has stated that hospital patients are at risk of catching infections such as MRSA and C.difficile from "biohazard" pillows which are riddled with 30 different bugs, according to a new study. He carried out research across his healthcare trust to compare standard pillows with ones manufactured by Gabriel Scientific. As Principal Clinical Scientist and Senior Lecturer at St. Bart's and the Royal London Hospitals and author of the report, he said: "The presence of these bugs means that they can and will be passed to patients."

The lecture was widely reported in the British press. Please follow the links below;

Telegraph Article

Daily Mail Article

Health News UK

hc2d Article

Health Equipment Magazine Article